RUMORS ABOUT DR. BRIGGS.

gates to the General Assembly at Defroit. The recent retirement of Dr. Bridgman from the Madison Avenue Baptist Church followed so soon by his confirmation by Bishop Potter are incidents which, in the present sensitive condition of affairs in church circles, serve to queken curiosity and inquiry concerning the intentions of Dr. Briggs in the event of his retirement from the Union Seminary.

Professor Briggs himself is just now on his way to Oxford, England, having sailed for Liverpool on Saturday morning last on the Umbria. His friends in this city who are supposed to be sufficiently intimate with Dr. Briggs to speculate with a reasonable degree of ocuracy upon his purposes bearing upon so important step as that suggested, simply smile at any reference to the subject, so far at any rate as immediate action is concerned. His plans for the summer are well known to embrace the pursuit of a course of study at Oxford and he will not return to New-York until the middle of September. It is not thought likely that he has sought English soil for the number of discision.

Thomas R. Manners, the president of the bank. The check was for $19, made payable to bearer, and indorsed by Hendelman & Lippman, clock manulacturers, of No. 50 Divisionst. Sergeant Cahilli happened to pass the bank at the time and Mr. Manners handed over the prisoner to him. He was taken to the Essex Market Police Court, and Justice Meade held him for examination. he has sought English soil for the purpose of disclaiming his further allegiance to Calvinism.

A few weeks ago a Tribune reporter, who has talked opened, repeated to Professor Briggs the stories affoat concerning him. The immediate subject under discussion was the prospective entrance of Dr. Bridgman to the Protestant Episcopal Church, and he was asked whether he believed the rumor true.

and Dr. Newton needed company and Dr. Bridgman will be good company for them, for he is a good broadminded man. I don't know anything about it, however, but I should not be at all surprised if it were he said substantially, was in the direction of broader views and the breaking down of denominational barriers in all Protestant communions. He spoke ad miringly of Dr. Bridgman's professional tale manly Christian qualities. He referred in the same spirit to Dr. Phillips Brooks and to Dr. R. Heber Newton, and his references to the latter were almost affectionate in the warmth of their expression. He held it tions to draw closer to one another, to cease wrang-ling over doubtful points of interpretation of the Scriptures, which no amount of disputation would ever make clearer, and stand together on one common platform of Christian liberality. It was to this end, he said, that he had advocated the adoption of a creed for the Church. He wanted something that would invite and not repel the young in these times, when the views of thoughtful men all over Christendom were broadening in their study of religious as well as other subjects. "And it is bound to come," he said, with enthusiasm. "There must be times of progress and of reaction. This is just now a period of reaction. But it will soon be followed by another period of progress, and the advance will be all the greater; and it is my belief that, so far as the Presbyterian Church is concerned, all this will be accomplished within the Church without anybody being compelled to leave it."

This expression of views, though not given as part of the interview, which bore on another branch of the Scriptures, which no amount of disputation would ever without anybody being compelled to leave it."

This expression of views, though not given as part of the interview, which bore on another branch of the controversy, can hardly be accepted as representing the position of Dr. Briggs regarding his retirement from with an institution in which young men are prepared for the ministry in that faith, said yesterday, when asked as to the truth of the rumors concerning Dr. Briggs's withdrawal: "I don't believe there is one scintilla of evidence in existence tending in that direction. This much, however, I will say: there are a good many broad-minded Presbyterians who will go into the Episcopal Church before long, unless something is done to prevent them from doing so, whether Dr. Briggs goes there or not."

Another friend of Dr. Briggs, who holds close personal relations with the Professor, said a few days ago: "I do not believe that such a course has ever suggested itself in his mind."

The last monthly meeting, until the first Tuesday in was held yesterday morning at the rooms of the Ladies' Guide and Visitors' Bureau, No. 11 West Eighteenth-st. Mrs. M. E. Troutman reported that the society had received assurances from the police captains in certain precincts that every effort would be made during the coming summer to keep the streets clear of unhealthy refuse, and a suggestion was offered that owners of tenement-houses ought to be held responsible for any neglect of their tenants to comply with the require. ments of putting ashes and garbage in the barrels pro vided for that purpose. A resolution was adopted ex-pressing the favorable views of the association in refbe presented to Mayor Grant by Kiliaen Van Rensselaer, In this connection Mrs. Ostram described a visit to the only woman's ledging-house in the city not conducted on a philanthropic plan. This ledging-house, which is managed purely on a business basis, is at No. 6 Riving-tor-st. and is owned by a rich woman who will not permit the publication of her name. "The whole house is as neat as wax," says Mrs. Ostram, "and for from 15 to 30 cents a woman can secure a decent and private."

He had cut his throat with a empting the 300-acre asylum farm here from taxes, beof the Assembly, of property amounting to $5,000, and pocketknife hours before that time, and had bled to thing, and is liable to die quiet, well-behaved man. John Satterlee, a contractor Purdy, chairman of the Board of Asse was sent to him by express. Harris had no money left no written explanation of his suicide, but persons at the Brower House thought his despondency was caused Junkin thought they should not "gush" too much over by illness and lack of money. In his pockets were some papers on which he had kept account of money some papers on which he had kept account of money spenf lately, and the figures showed that he had practised close economy. His address in Hartford and his business were not known at the hotel, but he was believed to have been unmarried. His body was sent to an undertaker's shop by direction of a coroner, and a message was sent to Mr. Satterlee, at Kingsbridge, asking for the address of the dead man's friends. Mr. Satterlee had not sent a reply late last night.

DINNER OF THE PACKARD ALUMNI ASSOCIATION. The annual dinner of the Packard Alumni Associa tion was held at Clark's last evening. The president, Byron Horton, presided. At his right sat the former president, Morris S. Wise, with Mrs. Wise, the Rev. Two hundred dollars was accepted as the maximum of Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd, Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Other guests present were Professor W. E. McCord, Professor and Mrs. J. D. Odell, Professor Charles M. Miller, Miss L. M. Kimball, Andrew Deyo, Colonel T. W. Knox and C. F. Wingate. Over sixty men and women were at table and speeches were made by Stevens, Professor McCord, S. S. Packard and the Rev. Mr. Lloyd. Cappa's Band furnished the music, and after the speaking there was a little dancing—the whole affair passing off in the most pleasant manner.

WILL HE GO INTO THE PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL CHURCH ?—HIS FRIENDS SAY THAT HE WILL NOT.

There have been occasional references of late to the possibility of the Rev. Dr. Charles A. Rrigs, of the Union Theological Seminary, entering into communion with the Protestant Episcopal Church. These rumors have also been affoat during the last week among delegates to the General Assembly at Defroit. The recent refinement of the Protestant and Defroit. The recent refinement of the Protestant Protection of the Mines of the Nineteenth Precinct, had a struggle with an insane man early yesterday morning. About midnight Conklin was informed that John Mongues, at atlor, living on the third floor of No. 250 West Twenty-eighth-st., was trying to kill his wife. Conklin went to the rooms occupied by Mongues, and found him trying to the room, Mongues turned on him and, picking up a pair of shears, threw them at the officer. It will be one year on June 15 since he failed to keep his agreements on the Stock Exchange, and if he does not "come to time" by that day, his seat will probably be sold, and the money thus received applied to a settlement of his contracts. Green knows this, and is now in this coun-try trying to make some terms of settlement which will not take from him his seat in this exchange. His Cotton Ex-change seat was sold last week for $505. Green's out-stending contracts are said to amount to only about $2,000.

If he can pay this amount, he can save his seat in the Stock Exchange.
